

Sentenced to Light

An astonishing series of unique collaborative image-text projects, Sentenced to Light privileges its poetic and formal textual space outside most of the images that are its original twins and offers the reader a glimpse of the dialectic of larger conversations, the unpredictable, improvisatory bavardage that whispers between words and pictures in a space we call culture. Anecdotal Waters is an invited response to a mixed-media installation by Mireille Perron and Paul Woodrow. Articulations was printed on a series of fifty paintings by Calgary artist Bev Tosh and incorporated in both an installation and a performance of the work. All Americans was serialized for an installation on the Minnesota Massacre of 1862. A biotext of landscape and memory, Twain consists of textual improvisations provoked by and situated alongside six poems that artist Marian Penner Bancroft applied directly to the walls among the photographs in her exhibition By Land and Sea (Prospect and Refuge). The alphabet of jingo cards was written for a collaborative performance piece with Vancouver multi-media artist Haruko Okano called High Bridi Tea that gestated years later into her jargon art project Homing Pidgin. Pop Goes the Hood, was written for a video-text performance commissioned from video artist Henry Tsang and poet Fred Wah. Me Too pays ghostly homage to the visual and textual work of Roy Kiyooka. The two transcreations are part of photographer Ernie Kroegers Wild Writing project that uses his photographically treated rubbings of the glyphs left by the Mountain Pine Beetle. The series of ppretenses (prose-poem sentences) was written for Pays Maya, a show of photographer Richard Baillergeons Yucatan images. In the title section, the prose-poem sentences stretch to comprehend the vanishing edges of lens, eye and syntax within Mexican photographer Eric Jervais
