

You're awoken by a noise that you haven't heard before. You keep perfectly still. There it is again, as if someone is breaking a stick in half. You wait, just in case it's a dream.. As a firefighter of thirty years, I have an incredible amount of knowledge of the potential dangers that a householder can find themselves in which, had they had some of this knowledge, would have helped them protect themselves against the horrors of fire. This compact fourteen-page booklet helps you understand where fire dangers lie and gives you the knowledge on how to protect you, your family and your property. Sections in this booklet include smoke alarms, safety in the kitchen, chip pans and deep-fat fryers, how to avoid electrical fires, electric blankets, planning your escape strategy, night time routine and more. Information highlights the risk factors and addresses them, reducing the likelihood of fire in the home. This is a booklet which will make an excellent gift to those you love, and leave you content in the knowledge that you have passed on tips which could prove to be lifesaving.
